The shop that keeps on giving

Wilstone Community Shop isn't just a shop - it's a meeting place, a café, a takeaway, an art gallery and somewhere to take your dry cleaning. It also sells tickets to local events in the village hall – the Dung Beatles were a great success – and is a valuable informal local information centre.

And, in addition to all this 'non-conventional-shop' activity it runs the occasional raffle like the big one at Christmas that raised over £300 for the Rare Dementia Support.

Pictured here is Tony Bonham with his splendid hamper of shop produce skilfully put together by Ali and her staff.

The money raised was supplemented by another raffle organised by the shop staff - the Christmas lunch for older residents of the village that took place in the village hall on 11 December – yet another event organised by the shop staff and which was greatly appreciated by all who attended.

New aprons for the volunteers

Diana and Janet can be seen here modelling the very smart new burgundy aprons that have arrived just in time for the new year. Shame it's in black and white!

Shop frontage nearly there

The reconstruction of the shop frontage is just two steps away from completion – the laying of the epoxy resin top surface and the iron railings. We hope these will be finished in the next few weeks because the laying of the epoxy coating is weather-dependent.

The picture also shows the new bespoke cupboards that hold the early-morning bread and newspaper deliveries.
